Our goal is to research the pioneers that came into the Walla Walla Valley Area, as a starter for those doing their family genealogy; we are not related.

Reunion Held

The descendants of James Madison Sickler who settled in College Place in 1859, held a reunion in Pioneer Park last Sunday. Relatives from California, Baker, Seattle, and Waitsburg attended. Mrs. Emory Dickerson's mother was born at Peppers Crossing and there were ten other children in the Sickler family.

I work every once in a while on the line because Madison

James Sickler lived in Bradford Co., Pa. in 1840 next to Reuben Sickler b. 1788e -- my ancestor. There is a fair chance he is a son of Reuben Sickler but I have no proof.

Notes for DELOS H. COFFIN:

An illustrated history of Walla Walla County, state of Washington, W.H. Lever, 1902 page 338

DELOS H. COFFIN, farmer, a pioneer of the Walla Walla valley of 1877, was born in Boston, Massachusetts, August 1, 1854. In 1855 he was brought by his parents across the plains to the Willamette valley, where his father, George D. Bought a squatter's right and engaged in farming. The family resided there seven years, then after proving up on their place as a donation land claim, went to Marion county and again engaged in farming and stock raising.

In this part of Oregon Mr. Coffin completed his public school education. He worked on his father's farm until twenty-one years old, but thereupon started to do for himself, choosing as his occupation the one which he had previously followed at home, namely, farming and stock raising. For the first three or four years he was compelled to rent land, but in 1879 he purchased eighty acres in the Walla Walla valley, where he now resides. This formed a nucleus for further acquisition until he is now the owner of four hundred and forty acres of fine land, upon which he raises stock, cereals and, in fact, almost all kinds of farm products which thrive in this climate.

Mr. Coffin is a very active man in local affairs, holding many offices of trust in the county. For four years he was school director, for six, he served as road supervisor, and he is now representing his district in the board of county commissioners. He is one of the leading and representative men of his neighborhood, enjoying the respect and confidence of his fellow citizens.

In fraternal affiliations, Mr. Coffin is identified with the F.O.E. and the I.O.O.F. He was married at College Place, December 16, 1881, to Miss Stella E. Sickler, a native of Minnesota, but a resident of this county since she was three years old.

Mr. Coffin's father died in this valley in February, 1885, after a residence of eight years here, and his remains lie buried in the Walla Walla cemetery.

Notes for THOMAS J. GILKERSON:

An Illustrated History of the State of Washington, by Rev. H.K. Hines, D.D.,

The Lewis Publishing Co., Chicago, IL., 1893, pages 416-417

THOMAS GILKERSON. -- Like her sister countries England has contributed many of the most enterprising and popular citizens of time United States, and prominent among time early pioneers of the State of Washington is the subject of this sketch, whose birth occurred in that fair land. Mr. Gilkerson was born in England, October 19, 1837, son of George and Sarah (Wilson) Gilkerson, both natives of England. In the year 1841, the father removed his little family to America, our subject being then but a small boy, four years of age. The father settled New York State, where he reared his family on a farm, dying in 1884, at the age of seventy-three years. His wife survived him until 1890, when she too died, at the age of eighty years. They had seven children, of whom our subject was the third child, and all of them are living but one.

Our subject left the State where he was reared, January 20, 1860, and came, via the Isthmus of Panama to British Columbia, where he remained a short time, then removed to Washington, working for wages for about two years. As he was industrious and frugal he was soon able to accumulate enough to purchase 160 acres of land. This he has improved, increasing the number of his acres to 440, 200 acres of which are in a high state of cultivation. This land he devotes to grain-raising and stock-growing, dealing in the best grades of live stock, including cattle, sheep, hogs, and horses, believing that it is a good plan to raise a little of everything, so that he may have something to sell at all times. On his land he has erected a comfortable home for his little family. It must be a source of great satisfaction to Mr. Gilkerson to review the past and contrast his present prosperous condition with his poverty when he landed in Washington. Notwithstanding his lack of means at starting, he is now numbered among the leading citizens of the county.

Our subject was married in 1863, to Mrs. McWhirk, nee Sickley, a native of Pennsylvania, who came to Washington in 1859. She was the widow of Henry McWhirk, who died, leaving one child, George Henry McWhirk. Mr. and Mrs. Gilkerson have had four children born to them, namely: Charles, Harry, Thomas and Lewis. Politically our subject casts his vote for the candidates of the Democratic party, and takes great interest in all measures of benefit to the community.

An illustrated history of Walla Walla County, state of Washington, page 429

THOMAS GILKERSON, a farmer residing on Mill creek, six miles east of Walla Walla, was born in England October 19, 1837. When a boy of four he was brought by his parents to New York state. His father located in Homer, and in that town Mr. Gilkerson passed his early youth and acquired his education. In 1859, influenced by a commendable desire for larger and better opportunities than were to be had in his home town, he started, via Panama, to the coast. Landing in British Columbia, he spent a brief period of time there, but, failing to find anything to his liking, he soon came to Walla Walla county.

During the first two years of his stay here Mr. Gilkerson worked as a farm hand for his wife's first husband, and, by industry and frugality, managed to accumulate enough to purchase a quarter section, and to start, in a small way, in farming on his own account. Industrious and frugal, he was also, as his venture in farming soon proved, a careful and conservative, yet progressive, man, and he continued to prosper and to increase in wealth until he became one of the comfortable and well-to-do farmers of the county. He now has four hundred acres of land and is raising grain and stock.

Unlike many farmers in this county, Mr. Gilkerson is a believer in diversified farming, so he keeps and raises cattle, hogs, horses, sheep and other live stock, not, however, neglecting wheat, barley, fruits and other farm products. In this way he always has something for sale in every season of the year. He has always taken an active intelligent interest in the affairs of county, state and nation, though he has never manifested any ambition for personal preferment, and has never held an office. His party affiliation is with the Democrats.

In this county, in 1863, our subject married Mrs. Eliza McWhirk, nee Sickley, a native of Pennsylvania, and a pioneer of 1859. Her first husband died in 1862, leaving one son, George H. She and Mr. Gilkerson have four children living, Charles, Harry, Thomas and Lewis. By her marriage with Mr. McWhirk, in 1860, Mrs. Gilkerson gained the distinction of being the first white lady married in Walla Walla County. The solemnization was by Judge Kennedy, who gave her a black silk dress in recognition of her being the first to take upon herself matrimonial bonds within the limits of the county. It is worthy of mention, as illustrating the conditions obtaining at that time, that Judge Kennedy had to send to The Dalles, Oregon, for the dress, there being nothing of so expensive a nature in Walla Walla or any town nearer at that period.

Notes for AUGUSTUS H TEBEAU:

Email from Scott Stickler

Philindia Sickler b. Apr. 19, 1843 had a third husband. She married Augustus H. Tebeau on Oct. 22, 1883 at the home of her son Charles L. Parris in Walla Walla. I found a copy of the marriage record in the Washington State digital archives. I've attached a copy, but it requires software downloaded from the archives. I have not figured out why her name is given as Emeline. Her son Isham Severson's marriage record also lists her as Emaline.

They are also listed in the 1885 state census:

No Shortage of Manpower in Alaska, Says Resident

Margaret Kyger, sister of Mrs. George R Malcom, 725 Valencia, who has worked for the civil aeronautics in Alaska seven years, included in her last letter a clipping from an Alaskan newspaper which warned of the overcrowding in the labor market there.

There is no manpower shortage in Alaska, Officials there, alarmed by the rapid influx of persons tempted by stories of high wages in the Northland, are urging them to turn back. And to statesiders who may be planning to try Alaska they join in a loud "Don't ", the clipping states. But in case they cannot be dissuaded, the newspaper advises they bring plenty of money to tide them over any slack period. Shelter is important, too, there being two feet of snow on the ground at Fairbanks at the time the article was written, with the mercury around the zero mark.

Notes for DANIEL T. KYGER:

An illustrated history of Walla Walla County, state of Washington, W.H. Lever, 1902,page 294-295

DANIEL T. KYGER – One of the most highly respected of Walla Walla's citizens, an esteemed pioneer of this valley and a leading business man, the subject of this brief review is deserving of a place of eminence among the men who have been instrumental in building up and shaping the destiny of the county.

He was born on the 17th of November, 1852, in the town of Kokomo, Indiana, and there he received his education. In 1864 he accompanied his parents to Nemaha county, Kansas, and thence to Missouri, where, in 1868, he joined a surveying party, with which he remained nearly a year. The next spring he came west, intending to try his fortunes in Arizona, but, on account of the Indian hostilities in that region, he changed his plan, coming north to the Walla Walla valley, with which he became identified July 3, 1869. He was a member of the first party sent out by Dr. Baker to raft logs down the Yakima river for the doctor's railway from Walla Walla to Wallula, and in 1873 he became a clerk in the employ of Paine Brothers & Moore, with whom he remained until they retired from business. In 1876 he opened a tobacco store on his own account, conducting the same for two years thereafter, but, at the end of that time, entering the employ of Johnson, Rees & Winans.

Mr. Kytger was industrious and frugal, so that by 1889 he had accumulated enough to enable him to purchase the business of his employers, which he did. Shortly afterward he disposed of a half interest in the establishment to Mr. Frank Foster, and the present firm of Kyger & foster was formed. Their business has always been conducted on correct principles, with the natural result that it has come to be one of the best paying in the city, the patronage of the establishment coming from a large section of the surrounding county, and goods from their shelves finding their way into the remotest parts of the valley. They keep always on hand a large stock of dry goods, clothing, ladies' furnishing goods, etc., and are ever read to cater to the wants of their customers.

Mr. Kyger has long been a prominent and leading man in politics, supporting the issues of the Republican party, and he is also an enthusiastic leader in the Masonic fraternity, being a past eminent commander of Washington Commandery, No. I, Knights Templar.

In August, 1875, the marriage of our subject and Miss Addie Sickler was solemnized, and their union has been blest by the advent of six children, four daughters and two sons.

The sons, Miles E. and Daniel T., Jr., earned the right to rank among the world's heroes by sacrificing their noble young lives on the altar of their country, they having passed away while fighting the battles of the Republic in the Philippines. While they did not die on the field of battle, they are deserving of the same credit as though they had done so, for in enlisting for service in a pest-laden climate they encountered not only the danger from the bullets of the enemy but also that from the insidious encroachments of disease, and it is no disparagement of their right to the title of hero that they fell victims to the latter rather than to the former foe.

Miles E. Kyger was born in Walla Walla on May 21, 1876, and in the common and high schools of this city he received his general education. He graduated in the high school class of 1895, then engaged in the mercantile business in his father's store, rendering himself almost indispensable by his faithfulness and devotion to the duties in hand. When the call to arms was sounded, however, he thought the claims of patriotism paramount to those of business, so generously offered his services to his country. They were accepted and he was sent to Manila, where, on the 3d of February, 1899, he succumbed to that dread disease typhoid.

Five days afterward his younger brother, Daniel T., who had also felt it incumbent upon him to enlist, suffered a similar fate, and so the bereaved parents, and in fact the entire city of Walla Walla, were called to mourn a double loss. The younger brother had completed his public-school education at the time war was declared, and was diligently pursuing a course in the business college with the intention of thoroughly preparing himself for commercial success.

Both the boys were energetic, promising young men, intensely popular with their associates, and respected by all who admire thrift, industry and sobriety, coupled with fine intellectual powers. When they passed away the entire state realized its loss, and many were the expressions of condolence received by the bereaved family, even the state senate taking cognizance of the matter and adopting the following resolution: "In grateful remembrance of our fallen heroes, Sergeant Miles E. Kyger and Daniel T. Kygers, Jr., comrades of Company I, First Washington Volunteers, who died in our country's service at Manila, to the bereaved parents, who sacrificed their only sons on the altar of our country, we, the members of the Senate of the state of Washington, do tender our deepest sympathy in your hour of affliction."

Notes for WILLIAM ALEXANDER CLARK:

An illustrated history of Walla Walla County, state of Washington, W.H.Lever, 1901, page 366 WILLIAM A. CLARK, a dairy farmer, seven miles southwest of Walla walla, was born in Missouri August 10, 1850. His father died when he was eight years old, and when he reached the age of fifteen he and his mother started across the plains with ox-teams to the west. Mr. Clark, though so young, made the entire trip on foot, driving the oen all the way. In their train were one hundred wagons, so that, though they were compelled to sustain a running fight with the Indian all through the journey, they were too strong to be closed in by their enemies. They settled first on Dry Creek, this county, in the fall of 1865, rented land and began farming, but later they moved to Pine creek where they had bought a small place.

Having disposed of this shortly afterwards, they returned to Dry creek and purchased two hundred and sixty-five acres, which was their home until Mr. Clark bought his present forty-seven-and-one-half-acre tract. He is also the owner of a quarter-section of land on Blue mountain, which he took as a homestead that he might have a pasture for his cattle, of which he has a fine band, all shorthorn Durham stock. He gives the major part of his attention to the dairy business. Mr. Clark has never been troubled in the least by Indians since settling in the valley, though during the war of 1878 he thought best to send his family to Walla Walla. He himself remained on his farm.

Our subject has long been one of the representative men of his neighborhood, taking a very deep interest in everything which promised to promote the general welfare. His interest in the cause of education is evinced by the fact that for nine years he was director in the Couse creek district. He was married, in county, July 3, 1873, to Miss Eliza P. Kinney, a native of Minnesota, whose parents were pioneers of 1859. They have seven children living: Eva, wife of J.L. Rogers; Myrtle, Willie, Louis, Elizabeth, Josephine, and one born January 16, 1901, not yet named; also four deceased, -- Edwin, Dora, Millie and Bessie.

Mr. Clark's mother, Mrs. Cynthia Clark, was born in Madison county, Kentucky, January 7, 1811, and is still living and in good health, though over ninety years old. At present she is residing with her daughter, Mrs. Mildred Swaggart, at Heppner, Oregon. She is one of the earliest and most highly and uniformly respected pioneers of this section and is affectionately called "Grandma" by all her acquaintances far and near. When the Methodist Episcopal church, South, she, though she had been reared in that denomination, withdrew her membership and joined the Baptist church, of which she has ever since been a faithful and consistent member.
