

FRENCHTOWN CEMETERY - LOWDEN, WASHINGTON

Excerpts from the following newspaper articles.

Walla Walla Union Bulletin - Walla Walla WA - 4 May 1947

Old Cemetery Roll was compiled by oldsters in 1942 who played prominent roles in the Frenchtown settlement, and were personally familiar with the cemetery history. The list has been in possession of Mrs. Nydia Bergevin, in Walla Walla, and from her the list was obtained. Notations made by the compilers back in 1942 include one which stresses the fact that the pioneers carried water in buckets up the hillside to keep the flowers and shrubbery green and attractive. Spelling used in the following list of people buried in the cemetery follows that employed by the oldsters who compiled the list, and they, too, added several identifications of persons.

Walla Walla Union Bulletin - Walla Walla WA - 4 October 1953

Bergevin helped build the St Rose Mission in about 1872. All that is left of it is a marker near the highway and a cemetery on the hill. As one passes down the highway, he would be led to believe that only half-a-dozen graves are in the cemetery, but there are approximately 125 persons buried there.
