A History of Brownsville

Brownsville, one of Oregon's early settlements had its beginnings in 1846, when a group of families including the Kirks, Browns and Blakelys came west on the Oregon Trail and continued south to claim land in the lush valley of the Calapooya River (it is said that the grass was so tall a man could tie it over his saddle, and that cattle would become lost in the fields.)

Alexander and Sarah Kirk established a small, hand-hauled ferry across the Calapooya River the following year. Travelers on the east side Territorial Road used the ferry during deep water periods, and the place became known as "Calapooya" or simply "Kirk's Ferry - Kirk's ferry operated until 1853, when a covered bridge was built over the Calapooya - the first built in Linn County with county funds.

To further serve travelers as well as the local residents, Hugh Brown and his nephew James Blakely established a store south of the river. In 1853 Blakely laid out a town on part of his land claim and named it after his uncle.

<http://www.linncountyroots.com/Towns/Brownsville.htm>

As far as can be ascertained from differing accounts of early Linn County emigration, the men first to locate at or near Brownsville were Courtney, Isaac Hutchins, Josiah Osborne, William Finley (37), Elias Walters and Austin Walters, who arrived variously in the fall of 1845 or the spring of 1846 (45). In the fall of 1846 came James Blakely, Hugh L. Brown, Jonathan Keeney and R. C. Finley (16). Alexander Kirk and his son, Riley Kirk, arrived in the spring of 1847 (45).

James Blakely settled on a claim upon which part of Brownsville now stands. He laid out the town in the spring of 1853 (46), hiring Luther White to do the surveying (47), and naming the place for his uncle, Hugh L. Brown who had started a store there. Blakely built the first house in Brownsville in 1846 (8). He was born in Knox County, Tenn., on November 12, 1812 and married Sarah Dick in Jefferson County, Tenn., in 1835. The two had 12 children and Mrs. Blakely died June 14, 1888. Blakely was a captain in the Rogue River War of 1856. In partnership with Brown, James McHargue and he built the first flour mill in Brownsville (19), and was one of the chief promoters of the Brownsville Woolen Mills. He was also a prominent stock raiser and served in the legislature. In November, 1912, he attended the birthday dinner in his honor, in Brownsville, at which five generations of family were present; he was then 100 years old. He died on January 29, 1913 (48).

Hugh Leeper Brown, who accompanied Blakely, took up a claim one mile east of the present Brownsville. He was born in Knox County, Tenn., on January 24, 1810, married Clarissa Browning of Tenn. in 1828, and crossed the plains to Oregon with her and their three children. He, like his nephew, Blakely, was one of the founders of the Brownsville Woolen Mills, was a soldier in the Cayuse War, mined in California and served in the legislature three times. During the latter part of his life he was blind. He and his wife had eight children and celebrated their golden wedding in 1878. He died in 1888, his wife surviving him (49).

An addition to the names of the early settlers in and about Brownsville must be made, namely that of Henry Harmon Spalding. This missionary and his wife were friends of the Marcus Whitman's, and their daughter, who was going to Whitman's school, was a survivor of the Whitman massacre. The Spaldings, barred from the clearwater by the murderous uprising of the Cayuse Indians, sought a new field near Brownsville. However, finding all the good land already taken up, Spalding was about to leave, when the Browns and Blakely's, rather than lose such a valuable addition to their community, shifted their claim lines enough to make room for Spalding to locate. Eliza, Spalding's daughter, married Andrew Warren (5).

In the beginning Brownsville was known simply as 'Calapooia' (45); a post office was established in 1850 (52). At times the place was referred to as "Kirk's Ferry". When Blakely laid it out in 1853 and named it Brownsville, the post office took that name (53). Blakely platted the town in 1864 and filed the plat for record in the Linn County clerk's office (34). North Brownsville was surveyed in 1863 on the farm of A. S. Bassett on the north side of the Calapooia. Previous to this, in 1856, the river had been bridged (47) and a ditch for water power had been dug in 1858 (5). Woolen mills were built by a joint stock company in 1861. The village of Amelia was laid out by H. H. Spalding in 1858 (47). In 1876 Brownsville was incorporated, and North Brownsville in 1874. The three communities, so close together as to form almost one, were incorporated as a unit in 1895. The U. S. Census, which took no notice of the population of towns in Linn County until 1880, in that year credited Brownsville with 143 inhabitants and North Brownsville with 307, ignoring Amelia. In the census of 1890, Brownsville is given 580 population-- which no doubt includes that of both Brownsville and North Brownsville. In 1900 all of Brownsville is listed with 698 inhabitants; in 1910 with 919; in 1920 with 763; in 1930 with 746 and in 1940 with 784. Brownsville, like hundreds of other towns, grew from a store to a village; got a school, churches, business houses, a bank, weekly newspaper, water works and electric light plant. However, its one sustaining industry was the Woolen mill, which began with a meeting for the discussion of plans on November 24, 1860 (55). Present were, among others, Dr. B. H. Crawford, chairman and T. A. Riggs, secretary, both of whom lived near Crawfordsville, east of Brownsville. A committee of five was appointed to interest people and to get subscriptions for the venture, namely: William H. Templeton, W. R.. Kirk, Dr. E. H. Griffin, Joseph Hamilton and T. A. Riggs. Stock was 400 a share.

George Wright Wilber 1917-2005

Published: June 8, 2005

Wright Wilber, long time resident of Drewsey, died at the age of 87 at St. Charles Medical Center in Bend on Tuesday, May 31.

Wright was born to Eulah Wright and Nelson Clarence Wilber in Ontario on Oct. 6, 1917. He attended school in Drewsey and graduated from Crane Union High School in 1935. In 1936, he enrolled in Albany College, known now as Lewis and Clark. At the young age of 19, and after completing the football and basketball season, Wright asked to borrow train fare from his grandfather, George Wright. After some discussion, his grandfather relented and loaned the money to Wright, who then traveled by train to Ontario, and eventually Riverside. In Riverside, he borrowed a horse and rode to the Stinkingwater homestead of his parents, and he has been in the Stinkingwater/Drewsey area ever since. He was home.

His mother-in-law, Katy Joyce, once said "Wright Wilber started with one old milk cow, drove it horseback to Stinkingwater, and started his ranch." Wife, Kathleen remembers she and Wright "moved from Stinkingwater to Drewsey with one pick-up load of furniture, and that old milk cow." Wright was not afraid of hard work. Innovation intrigued him, especially when it improved his ranch's production. Wright was a private person who welcomed good conversation on any subject.

He was a successful cattle rancher and respected horse person who was devoted to his family. Wright appreciated a good gin martini, shaken, not stirred. He once "rearranged" the exterior of the Drewsey Cafe and Tavern acquiring "a piece of the rock" during one visit to the cafe in his old brown pick-up. Wright was an avid fisherman and hunter; he knew his birds, and he daily fed his personal covey of pheasants and quail.

He is survived by his wife of 64 years, Kathleen Joyce Wilber and was preceded in death by his son, John Michael Wilber. Surviving sons and their wives include: Bill and Patsy Wilber, Pat and Judy Wilber, and George and May Ann Wilber; he leaves one nephew, Phillip Teal. Surviving grandchildren include Laurissa Lake Rembisz, Marilyn Wilber Griffin, Dr. Marea Wilber, MVB, Cody Martin Wilber, Royce and Casey Wilber, Kari Kemp Moore, Kristi Kemp Rice, and Megan Kathleen Wilber. In addition, Wright is survived by seven great-grandsons and five great-granddaughters.

Wright was a member of the Elks Lodge, and contributions in his memory may be made to the Elks Lodge 1680, 118 North Broadway, Burns, OR.

Private burial services for George Wright Wilber were held at the Drewsey Field Ranch at 1 p.m. on Saturday, June 11.
