MARK (M.D.) POWELL

MARK (Marcus) POWELL came to Prineville with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. JOHN POWELL in the fall of 1870, reaching this locality on the 20th of November. He always told his children and grandchildren he was sixteen years old the next day after arriving in Prineville. He was born November 21, 1853 at Scio.

Coming from a strain of pioneers, he had the helpful spirit of that early day; no case of need ever came to his notice that he did not hasten to relieve. He was foremost in community affairs and many worthwhile endeavors of the town and country. They owed their success if not their inception to him. He became active in the organization of the first school in Prineville. In 1870, it was through MARK POWELL's efforts in organizing the young people that the first school was successful.

MARK POWELL was the first elected assessor of Crook County, and served two years as county commissioner along with Sid Stearns.

During this time the Crook County High School began.

MARK took a band of cattle to Beaver Creek where he engaged in the cattle business for three years, with considerable success. He then returned to his father's home in Prineville and in 1877, he rected the first building at Second & Main Street where he engaged in the mercantile business for six years. Later moving to a farm below town where he ran the first milk route in Prineville, a new convenience for people of his cattle county.

Prior to this he married VICTORIA THOMPSON at her parent's some up west of what is know as Ochoco Ranger Station. In early day the THOMPSON's kept travel going to Mitchell and other eastern towns.

OLIVER POWELL and ELLA ZELL were their attendants. OLIVER and ELLA later married and lived most of their lives in Crook County.. They were both ardent workers in the Baptist Churches until deat. OLIVER built the big stone house on Third Street where they lived during their senior years. Their daughters were EFFIE CALBREAT and STELLA CROSSWHITE. Their son was REI.

MARK's wife, VICTORIA, died in 1893. In 1894, MARK married AVER ZEVERLY GEROW--with his and her families they moved to Lower McKay on a place MARK inherited. It was a big hay ranch. Their children attended Lower McKay school. their son, LLOYD, later rode to high school on horse bac. ORA, his daughter, married ALLIE JONES; a son, FLOYD, was born to then; also a daughter FLORA. ORA, the mother, passed away. FLORA died at the age of eleven years. FLOYD's daughter, MARJORIE JONES LEWIS, lives in Washington. His son, MARVIN, runs the ranch as FLOYD died in 1979.

ELIZABETH (LIZZIE) married SAM REYNOLDS; VESTA was born to them in 1909. ELIZABETH passed away December 1909. MARK's other children all died in infancy.

MARK confessed faith in Christ at the early age of fifteen but never affiliated with any church or other religious organization. He regularly attended the Baptist Church, sang in the choir and often assisted in the work of the Church. Possessing considerable musical ability and a pleasing voice he was much in deman on occasions where music was desired. He sang at the first open grave in Prineville and without doubt sang at more funerals than any other person in Crook County.

His son, LLOYD, also loved to sing. He led the choir at one tome.

MARK died at the age of 77 in August 1931. LLOYD died September 26, 1979 at the age of 88

He married ALICE M SCOTT 16 Dec 1877 in Salem, Marion, OR, daughter of SAMUEL SCOTT and MARY BELKNAP. She was born 01 Jan 1859 in Waldo, Josephine County, Oregon, and died 08 Jan 1937 in Portland, Multnomah, Oregon¹¹¹.

Notes for GEORGE M BEELER:

OBITUARY:

Died--Beeler--At the family residence, No. 375 Church street, at 6:45 o'clock p.m. on Tuesday, April 10, 1894, George M. Beeler, in his 38th year.

Mr. Beeler was a native of Marion county, having been born near the forks of the Santiam on the 15th of October, 1856. He received a preparatory schooling at Monmouth, in Polk county (where he has a host of warm friends) and finished his education at Santa Rosa, California. On December 16, 1877, he married Miss Alice M. Scott of this city, and the fruits of this happy union are five sturdy sons, Oaka G., the eldest; Ivan E., Lloyd B., Scotty R., and Jay P., the youngest.

The major portion of Mr. Beeler's days were spent in and about Salem, where he was known and honored, far and wide, for the rectitude of his business and social life. About three months ago he began ailing and his trouble soon developed into a pronounced catarrh of the stomach. All that the most skillful medical service and the most devoted nursing could do for him could not abate the ravages of the disease, and his surcease from pain came early yesterday night. Salem loses an upright and energetic citizen in the death of George M. Beeler and those who stood closest to him in life a devoted husband, father and friend. The funeral will take place from the home at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and the interment at Rural cemetery.

Daily Oregon Statesman 11 Apr 1894 4:4

LAID to REST --All that was mortal of the late George M. Beeler was laid to rest in the beautiful Rural cemetery yesterday afternoon. Rev. W. A. Smith, of Albany, a life-long friend of Mr. Beeler and of his family, conducted the services at the home, and his close and friendly relations to all there emphasized the solemnity of his ministrations. Upon their conclusion, the Woodmen, ninety-one strong, took charge of the cortege, for fraternal honors, and the procession moved to the cemetery on the South Salem cars. Upon arrival at the grave the beautiful and simple ritual for the dead was impressively read by the officers of the camp, and for the first time in the history of Woodcraft here the flight of the white dove was made from the grave of a departed neighbor. The services were rounded out by a quartet of well-trained male voices. The floral offerings were numerous and beautiful, especially a large floral emblem of the "Gates Ajar," sent from the office of the State Insurance Company. All insurance offices of the city sent representatives and the large throng gathered there made manifest the broad and hearty esteem in which the deceased gentleman was held in this community. Notes for ALBERT BENTON BOND:

"Portrait and Biographical Record of the Willamette Valley - Oregon," Chapman Publishing Company, Chicago, 1903

Albert B. Bond

The pioneer annals of Oregon must needs contain the name of Nathan W. Bond, who twice crossed the plains to the west, and whose son, Albert B., is at present the part owner of his original donation claim. Nathan Bond was born in Tennessee, and as a boy moved with his parents to Illinois, and from there to Iowa, in which latter state he married Elizabeth J. Trailer. Leaving his wife and children on a farm he crossed the plains with ox-teams in 1850, and after a few months in the gold fields of California returned by way of the Isthmus of Panama. The ship in which he sailed was becalmed and for forty days the anxious crew and passengers looked in vain for a breeze to fill their sails and bear them away. Provisions became scarce, and water low, and their successful landing became problematical. Eventually reaching his Iowa farm, he remained there until the Spring of 1853, and then packed together his household goods, laid in a store of provisions, and started several teams of plodding oxen across the plains. The first winter was spent in the Looney settlement, and in the spring of 1854 the father bought the right to a three hundred acre claim. So successful was he, and so confident of the ultimate development of this entire part of the country, that in 1856 he bought three hundred and thirty acres more. For twenty-nine years he labored successfully in his adopted state, his death occurring in 1889, at the age of seventy-three years. The wife who had shared his joys and sorrows, and who had materially aided in bringing about success, survived him until 1896, or until seventy-three years of age. Caroline, the oldest of their children, is the wife of Lewis Cox, of Washington; Annie is the wife of John Reed, of Lebanon; Benjamin F. died in the midst of a successful medical practice at Dallas, in 1871; and Susanna died in Iowa at seven years of age. The youngest in his father's family, and three years of age when he came across the plains, Albert B. Bond was reared on the home farm, and at irregular intervals attended the district schools. He assisted with the management of the entire farm until his marriage with Cornelia J. Beeler, at the age of twenty-three, after which he purchased one hundred and thirty acres of farm land near Scio, and there he farmed for eight years, and then went to eastern Oregon where he remained two years, and in 1882 he moved upon his present farm of two hundred and eighty acres, the same being a part of the old donation claim. He has made those modern improvements upon which the latter-day farmer prides himself, and for many years has engaged in general farming, stock and grain-raising. Six children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Bond of whom the oldest son, William B., was a soldier in the Spanish-American war, and as a member of the Fourth Infantry was present at El Caney and Santiago, afterward being under command of General Lawton in the Philippines. Clara E., Benjamin Franklin, Archie T., Looney C., and Loren are living at home with their parents. Mr. Bond is devoted to his farm and home, and has never found time or inclination to step out into the glare of political or other publicity. He is honest in all of his dealings, kindly and considerate in his association with those around him; and inclined to look on the better side of life.

58. MELBOURNE⁵ WATKINSON (REBECCA H⁴ BEELER, JOHN MICHAEL³, PETER², JOHN JACOB MICHAEL¹) was born 03 May 1857 in Linn County, Oregon, and died 1939 in Age 81. He married ADA GALENA GILBEY Abt. 1882 in Washington, daughter of FRANKLIN GILKEY and ELIZA BOWEN. She was born Aug 1865 in Pennsylvania, and died Abt. 1950 in Age 85.

Notes for MELBOURNE WATKINSON:

An Illustrated history of Skagit and Snohomish Counties : their people, their commerce and their resources, Interstate Publishing Company, 1906, Pg 771

MELBOURN WATKINSON is one of the oldtime men of Skagit county and has done his share toward developing the resources of the country. His life, like that of his father, has been the life of the pioneer farmer and timber man. Mr. Watkinson was born in Linn County, Oregon, May 3, 1857, the son of Robert Watkinson, a native of Manchester, England, who came to the United States and was a school teacher in New Orleans, in Ohio and in Indiana. In 1852 he crossed the plains by ox team and settled in Linn County, Oregon, taking up a homestead and teaching school. He also spent two years in California, but returned to his Oregon home, and in 1869 came to Washington and settled on Hood's canal in Mason county. Two years he passed as a merchant, and then took up a pre-emption and lived on it for ten years. He visited for one year in his old haunts in Canada and died in Skagit county in 1902. Mrs. Rebecca (Beeler) Watkinson, now living in Skagit county, was born in Missouri, but crossed the plains with her father in 1852 and was married in Oregon, becoming the mother of ten children, of whom Melbourn is the oldest. Melbourn Watkinson received his education in the schools of Oregon and Washington, and at the age of sixteen commenced to do for himself, working with Chris Johnson for four years in a logging camp. He afterwards engaged in logging in his own interests and then cruised timber for a year from Hood's canal to Quiniault, on the Pacific coast, traversing the Olympic range of mountains. In 1880 he came to Skagit county and for a year worked for Joe Miller in a logging camp. Then in company with his brother-in-law and six other men, he formed a plan to take up land and follow logging. This arrangement was successful and continued for two years, at the end of which time he bought his present home place of one hundred and forty-two acres, a little over two miles south of Edison. It was then in its raw state, but Mr. Watkinson has diked and cleared the entire tract and erected a fine eight-room house and large barn. In 1882 Mr. Watkinson married Miss Ada G. Gilkey, daughter of Franklin and Eliza (Bowen) Gilkey, natives of Pennsylvania, later farmers in Kansas, and Washingtonians since 1875. Mr. Gilkey, who was born in 1840, is living in Snohomish county, but Mrs. Gilkey died here in 1898. Mr. Watkinson was also a native of the Keystone state, born in 1865, but educated in the schools of Kansas and Washington. To Mr. and Mrs. Watkinson have been born ten children: Melville E., living at home; Cora M., who died in 1904; Arthur P., Nellie F., Ida, Alice, Nora, Myrtle, Blanch and Frankie. In politics Mr. Watkinson is a Democrat. He is farming but sixty acres now; the place is well stocked with horses and cattle. He is recognized as one of Skagit's citizens of sterling worth and integrity and is a man respected by all.

THIS SITE IS GREAT for information on the Watkinson Family. Includes pictures.

Euphroneous E. "Frone" Watkinson

By Ray Jordan, Yarns of the Skagit country, 1962

He is the last of the Samish River log drivers. "There was nothing here but a big marsh covered with virgin timber," he says.

Many of us can measure our experiences with a yardstick, but the grand old gentleman of the Lower Samish, E.E. (Frone) Watkinson, needs a rule 80 years long to scale his activities since wading through the swamps in 1882 at the age of 16 to what was to become a pleasant little community of Allen.

And, likely and alert at 96, he is still adding to the score.

It was rather a circuitous route that brought him here. He was born in Scio, Linn County, Oregon, on February 4, 1866, of pioneer parents who met and married in Oregon after coming west by different wagon trains.

When he was three, in 1869, the family loaded a wagon and made the overland trek from Oregon by way of Olympia to Union City on Hood Canal in Washington Territory. After a time here they moved to Seabeck where they resided for about one year.

The next move was to Lilliwaup on Hood Canal where his father, Robert Watkinson, had homesteaded. They were the first white family to settle here. (Lilliwaup Falls was on this property.) With only Indian children for playmates the white youngsters soon learned the Indian tongue. Here the Watkinsons remained for about two years.

At the age of 14, E.E. Watkinson found himself laboring in the logging camps on the Canal at the usual beginner's job: walking ahead of the slow-moving oxen, greasing skids with smelly dogfish oil.

His first sight of the Samish country was during his fourteenth year when the steamer Colfax landed him at the deep channel (called "Stup-us" by the Indians) at the northeast end of Samish Island. The purpose of this trip was to visit his brother-in-law, Billy McRae, who had a farm on Joe Leary Slough.

When he arrived at the ripe age of 16, in 1882, he came to Edison looking for his chance. The only road anywhere near was from Bay View to LaConner. To reach it you walked the dike from Edison to Bay View Hill. The Samish Valley in the vicinity of Allen was a watery, little known region covered with timber unmarred by the ax.

His brother, Melbourne Watkinson, had preceded him in 1880 and had been working in a logging camp on the Skagit River near Burlington. Several of the crew, desirous of entering the logging business on their own, had been told by Davy O'Keefe that there was good timber on the Samish River.

With this in mind they rolled their blankets one day and threaded their way across the oozy bottoms to the Samish. The logging show looked promising so they staked claims and formed the Samish Lumber Company in 1881.

Partners in this venture were: Melbourne Watkinson, Richard Holyoke, John McPherson (for awhile), William McRae, William McCreavy, David O'Keefe, John Brown, William Tracy, and Martin Thorpee. Thorpee, the last named partner, was a man who must have delighted Paul Bunyan. According to creditable witnesses, this gentleman after downing a drink at the bar had the singular habit of chewing up the glass and washing down the splinters with another shot of red eye. Doctors could hardly wait for his end to see what was inside of him.

E.E. Watkinson wanted to homestead, but of course was too young so he took a job with the newly formed Samish Lumber Company in order to earn his bacon and beans.

A camp was established about one and one-half miles upriver from Allen on the edge of Bow Hill near the river. Mary (Watkinson) McRae was the first cook. Richard Holyoke, who had been a mill man at Seabeck, purchased logging gear for the Samish operation on Hood Canal. This outfit was towed on a scow to Samish Island, then towed by another scow, oxen and all, to Edison where it was transferred to a sled and hauled by ox teams to the new camp on Samish. E.E. took part in the move from the Canal.

Active logging to the river by oxen started in midsummer. Since no logs had ever been driven down the Samish River before, E.E. and Melbourne Watkinson began the backbreaking task of cleaning out the river, which was, then a network of sloughs, islands and jams with no main channel.

For this purpose several Indians were hired. Islands were cleared of brush, which was towed ashore on a slab raft and burned. During this campaign the river was cleared from about two miles above Allen to salt water, the crew camping along the stream to be near the work.

A dam was built about a mile and a half upriver from Allen to back up water for log storage. In the fall the dam was opened at intervals and the logs shot through and down the river on the splash to the salt chuck. Every timberjack in the crew had to be on the ball when the round stuff was whooping through. Charlie Beeler, he remembers, was one of the dam tenders.

Logs at this time were boomed at salt water and towed to mills on the Sound where they brought around $5 a thousand. Later, there was a mill at Allen.

In connection with the log drives, E.E. gives us an interesting sidelight:

"While driving logs for Pat McCoy about 1902, my sister-in-law (now Mrs. Louise Hayes), then 17, came down to the river and wanted to ride downriver on the logs with me to Melbourne Watkinson who lives near Conn's Bridge due south of Edison.

"I found a log with a flat top and she climbed on board. The logs jammed once, but I shoved hers to shore until I could break up the jam. Then we continued on down to the bridge without mishap. It was a lot easier and faster than walking. Afterward, she hiked the three miles back to Allen by a trail that followed the river." (Mrs. Hayes says that in those days nothing bluffed her. We believe it.)

The year following E.E.'s arrival on the Samish, his mother, Rebecca (Beeler) Watkinson, left Hood Canal and took a homestead, one corner of which lies in the present day Allen.

After two or three years of operation, the Samish Lumber Company, the first loggers on the Lower Samish, sold out.

Following this, E.E. worked several years in camps and driving the river, including the W.E. Gilkey and Fred Parker operation at Belfast in territorial days where he first met R.F. Smith. He also worked for some time for the one and only Pat McCoy who rates a close second to the fabulous Paul Bunyan in this neck of the woods.

He remembers Pat's original "railroad" a wooden railed contrivance upon which "cars" were towed by a steam road donkey.

Frone moves his bride to Allen in 1901

In 1900 while working in a logging camp for Fred Molsberg, he married Lena D. Lomsdalen (also spelled Lonsdale), a native of Fergus Falls, Minnesota. For a year they lived in a small house built by Pat McCoy for one of his engineers.

His present home in Allen was started in 1901 on ten acres of land, a part of his mother's original homestead, which he had previously purchased from her.

This well built, two-story house in which only the finest of lumber was used was erected at a cost of $1,000. With logs going for $5 a thousand and carpenters wages $2.50 a day, you can guess why. This sturdy dwelling was the scene of many dances before a dance hall was built in Allen.

His face lights with a quiet smile when winds of the past blow up memories of the high times they used to have and the doing that it took.

"At Edison on the 4th of July there would be a big picnic and a dance. One year, upon invitation from Tom Cain, the promoter, a group came from Mount Vernon.

"A few months later, six couples returned the visit. They boarded a boat at Edison in the morning, traveled to Samish Island to catch the steamer that made the Whatcom to Mukilteo run. At Mukilteo they unloaded and waited for the sternwheeler to take them back up north by the Inside Passage, then upriver to Mount Vernon.

"They left Edison at 6 a.m. and landed at Mount Vernon at 9 p.m. After dancing all night they returned the same route.

"After Melbourne Watkinson and Ada Gilkey were married at Edison in 1882, they started in a sailboat for Sehome on their wedding trip.

"Bill McRae and his wife Mary, Sarah Thomas, myself and some others whose names I don't remember followed in a rowboat much the same as today's hecklers chase a newly wedded couple with cars.

"There was so little wind that the sailboat was delayed until 12 p.m. that night in reaching Sehome, allowing the rowboat powered only by willing muscles to beat them there. (We wonder if modern endurance would stand up to this,)

"The first road building was done by the property owners themselves. In some instances, they even donated money for the cause. Some settlers worked out their taxes this way. The first road across the Olympic Marsh from Allen to Avon was built of puncheon. Everywhere it seemed there was water.

"During one long period in the early days we had mail only once every two weeks. Fred Watkinson, my brother, made the trip from Allen to Edison for it. The papers we took then were the San Francisco Examiner and the Spokane Spokesman Review. They were somewhat old when we received them, but you bet that we devoured them anyway.

"Living was mostly produced at home. We raised our own vegetables, meat, berries and fruit. Our cows furnished milk and butter. And of course there was the farm flock that gave us our eggs and Sunday dinners. We shopped in town only for a few necessities, Sugar was $5 a hundred and flour $4 a barrel.

"After the Avon-Allen road was built we shopped at Avon by horse and buggy, and later, as roads were extended and improved, at LaConner and West Mount Vernon.

"By 1903, the Allen-Roray mill was in operation."

Allen took on a metropolitan air in the August of 1912 with the arrival of the new electric Interurban line connecting the place with Sedro Woolley, Mount Vernon, Burlington and Bellingham. The stop was called Allen-Roray.

Though the place had been known as Allen for some time, the line officials offered to add the Roray, if Roray, one of the mill owners, would donate right-of-way through his property. There was some opposition to the double-barreled name, but it was continued by the Company until the demise of the line in 1929-30. Since that time the Roray part has withered on the vine. One remarkable thing about Allen was that it never had a saloon in the old days.

"When I came here I was too young to take up land, but I could have had all I wanted at $2.50 an acre. Later while working for Pat McCoy, another young man and I did a lot of cruising around looking for homesteads or timber claims and found the bottom land pretty well taken up.

"There was worlds of hill land covered with the best of timber, for instance, Bow Hill; that I could have had, but thought it was too inaccessible to be logged with oxen. So I worked for others until the country around was pretty well logged off, then turned to farming."

Viewing the smooth green fields and modern surroundings from E.E.'s comfortable home leaves you awed by the fact that you have been talking to a man who has seen it change from uninhabited, watery jungle to its present state, and who at 96 still faces the future with the same calm courage that he did in 1882. (The above was written in 1962. Mr. Watkinson passed away on April 5, 1965.)

EUPHRONEOUS E. WATKINSON, who lives four miles south of bow, is one of the agriculturists of that section who are making a success of diversified farming. He was born in Linn county, Oregon, the son of Robert Watkinson, who crossed the continent to Oregon in pioneer days, and later contributed to the development of communities in that state and Washington. On coming to this commonwealth, the elder Watkinson located in Mason county. A somewhat fuller sketch of his career and that of his worthy helpmeet will be found in connection with the biography of another son, Melbourn Watkinson, which precedes this biography.

Euphronious E. Watkinson, of this review, was brought by his parents to Mason County, Washington, in 1869, when about four years old, and was educated in the public schools there established. When he was sixteen, in 1880, his parents removed to Skagit county and he accompanied them here, though for two years previous he had been earning his own living. After locating in Skagit county, he followed logging and other work in the woods until the year 1900, when he decided to engage in farming. He had previously purchased a place of ten acres, all in timber, and had cleared and otherwise prepared it for cultivation, but he preferred to locate on the old home of his parents in the vicinity of Bow, and the parental place has been the scene of his operations since.

In 1900 Mr. Watkinson married Miss Lena Lonsdale, a native of Fergus Falls, Minnesota. Ole Lonsdale, her father, who is a native of Norway, born July 28, 1836, came to the United States in early manhood and engaged in farming in Minnesota, but in 1888 came to Washington and is now living at Edison. Mrs. Mary (Christianson) Lonsdale, mother of Mrs. Watkinson, was born in Norway in 1845, came to the United States in 1868 and lived for a time with her brother in Minnesota before marrying Mr. Lonsdale. She passed away in 1887, the mother of nine children, of whom Mrs. Watkinson is fourth. Mr. and Mrs. Watkinson are the parents of three children: Georgie May, born September 26, 1901; Walter, March 15, 1903, and Herbert M., January 18, 1905. In fraternal circles Mr. Watkinson is an Odd Fellow and in politics a Democrat. He is engaged in general farming, including stock raising, and now has nine head of cattle, horses sufficient to cultivate the place to advantage, and other live stock. Mr. Watkinson is a man strong in character and capable of hard work, and his success is the legitimate result of his earnest endeavor and good business ability.
