Notes for WILLIAM HARRISON DICKSON:

Excerpt from Unknown article on the bank history of Pendleton, Oregon.

By the fall of 1932 Pendleton was without a banking concern of any kind. This was the Bank holiday, declared by Presidential order, and banks everywhere closed their doors for specified periods.

For nine months, until the summer of 1932 the city issued a negotiable scrip, with which all city employees were paid and which merchants accepted as a legal medium of exchange. Charles Burnett was city recorder at this time and H.W. Dickson was city treasurer.

Dickson, former manager of the Pendleton branch of the United States National Bank of Portland, is dean of banking business in Umatilla County, having had the longest term of service of any living banker in Pendleton or other communities. He was a banker for 44 years; served on committees of the Oregon State Bankers Association.

In 1933, on July 10, the United States National Bank of Portland opened a branch in Pendleton and in October of that year the First Nation Bank of Portland also opened a branch of which Will Glass was manager for many years. Glass is close behind Dickson in the number of years he was in the banking business.
